

NOVAK AWARD APPLICATION

Description: Named after the distinguished American theologian Michael Novak, this $20,000 award rewards new outstanding scholarly research into the relationship between religion, economic liberty, and the free and virtuous society. This award recognizes those scholars early in their academic career who demonstrate outstanding scholarly merit in advancing the understanding of theology's connection to human dignity, the importance of the rule of law, limited government, religious liberty, and freedom in economic life.

Selection Process: Shortly after the application deadline, applications are reviewed and finalists are selected. The Novak Award recipient will be selected by the Acton Institute. Award decisions are final and not subject to appeal.

Award Information:

- Calihan Lecture: The recipient of the Novak Award will present his or her research in a public forum known as the Calihan Lecture.
- Acknowledgement: Any published work drawn out of the award must also be granted by-line acknowledgment to the Novak Award and the Acton Institute.
- Publicity: The Acton Institute may publicize the award and has permission to identify a recipient as a Novak Award recipient.
- Tax Compliance: Recipients must comply with any applicable tax regulations.

Eligibility:

- Scholars who have received a doctorate from an accredited domestic or international program in the previous five calendar years. Current doctoral candidates in the process of completing their dissertations are also eligible.
- Nominees must be studying theology, religion, economics, philosophy, business, or a related field.
- Strong academic performance is essential.
- Applicants must have a demonstrated interest in the themes of the Acton Institute and Novak Award. Nominees must also display the potential to contribute to the advancement of these ideas.
- The Novak Award is open to all qualified persons irrespective of race, age, sex, national or ethnic origin, citizenship, religious affiliation, or disability.

Deadlines: To be considered for the Novak Award, the complete application must be postmarked by March 15.

Important Notes:

- Award Communication: All award decisions are communicated via e-mail. If you do not read your e-mail regularly, please clearly indicate this on your application.
- Application Submission: No faxed or e-mailed entries will be accepted. All application materials should be submitted together and be written in English.
- Performance Assessment: Like the vast majority of universities, scholarship programs, and research institutes, the Acton Institute does not enter into discussions with unsuccessful applicants concerning the particular reasons for their denial.

A completed application consists of:

1. This signed and completed application form
2. Curriculum vitae
3. A 500-word essay that describes your intellectual development, future plans, and career goals. This statement should elaborate on the source and development of your interest in the ideas and principles listed above. Include how you expect to contribute to a better understanding or application of these ideas.
4. A research paper, refereed published article, or other scholarly work, such as a book, monograph, or a conference paper, on a theme relevant to religion and economic liberty.
5. Two letters of recommendation from professors or other established scholars in your field.
